Diablo Farmers To Sponsor 'County Fair'

Want to have some old fashioned fun this Saturday?

If so, bring the wife and kids and come to a high school activity that represents the old County Fair.

The Future Farmers of Mission Viejo High School are holding their first Future Farmers of America Field Day this Saturday, complete with exhibits and deep-pit barbecue.

Displays are open to the public at 10 a.m. and judging starts at 1 p.m. with trophies and ribbons being awarded during dinner.

The barbeque--to which the public is invited--will be held at 5:30 p.m. after the showing of beef, sheep, poultry, rabbits, floriculture, citrus, cakes, pies, and other semester projects. The advisory council for the high school agricultural program is sponsoring the barbecue.

Tickets for the barbecue, selling for $1.75 for adults, $1.50 for students and children, are available at the door. The field day is a preview to July's Orange County Fair. Anyone interested in buying steers at the County Fair this July may see the local high school entries this Saturday.

There are more than 90 students in the agricultural program at the new high school and Arnold Troftgruben, veteran agricultural teacher, heads the program.

The agricultural program for the Tustin Union High School District was moved to the new high school last fall. Seven acres were donated by the Mission Viejo Company for the program and 100 orange trees were recently donated to MVHS by local rancher George Broomell. The Mission Viejo Company also recently donated 12 artificially bred calves to the high school program.

Catholic Women Tour Mission at Luncheon

A delegation of Council of Catholic Women from St. Nicholas Church toured the San Juan Capistrano Mission and grounds Tuesday while attending the Orange County Deanery Institute's meeting and luncheon.

The event, sponsored by the Los Angeles Deanery of the Council of Catholic Women, has not met in this area of Orange County for quite some time, a delegate said.

Known as "Operation Angel," the 250 delegates, members and

Mission Youth Club Launches Toy Drive

The Mission Viejo Youth Club, a group of high school students residing in Mission Viejo has launched a one-month toy drive to collect repairable discarded toys for two-to-six-year-old children at the Albert Sitton Homes, county-operated facility for children from broken homes.

The youth group in the new community has doubled its membership since being organized less than two months ago.

In addition to the toy drive, collection of discarded clothes for Mexico missions and sponsorship of a waif in Korea are being undertaken by the non-sectarian youth group, according to Steve Bryson, club president.

The humanitarian activities conducted by the new club are being financed through the proceeds obtained from a car wash in Mission Viejo once each month, bake sales, dances and other fund raising activities, Bryson said.

The club was organized by Rev. Robert H. Lange, pastor of the Mount of Olives Lutheran Church, the first church to be established in Mission Viejo.

Home collection of toys and clothes in the Mission Viejo area can be arranged by calling the

Highlands Assn. Slates Speaker

A representative from the Orange County Planning Commission will be guest speaker at the Capistrano Highlands Homeowners Association's next meeting.

Scheduled for Monday, the meeting will be held in the Mission Viejo High School multi-purpose room at 8 p.m.

The planning commission representative's speech will be centered on the county's plans for the immediate area.

Officials of the association said all Capistrano Highlands residents are urged to attend the meetings of the group to "voice their opinions concerning their community."

Citizen's Group Works on Override

Dr. Sylvan Katz, Chairman of the Citizen's Education Advisory Group for the Tustin Union High School District, gave a report last week at the regular meeting of the high school Governing Board on the organization's progress.

He said that 3,000 bumper stickers have been printed in support of the June 13 tax override and that brochures, supporting the tax override, are presently at the printers.

The organization, said Katz, started to present coffees this week where speakers are informing groups of the need for the high school tax override to be passed.

church office, 837-7467, Rev. Lange said. All high school students residing in Mission Viejo are eligible to join the club and may do so by calling the same number.

Registration Underway for San Joaquin

Registration will be a dominant activity in the schools of the San Joaquin School District during the remaining days of May.

As kindergarten children prepare for and other ages continue their educational experiences, the week of May 22 to May 26 has been designated for kindergarten registration in the schools of the district.

Parents of children who will be 5-years-old on or before Dec. 2, 1967, may enroll their youngsters in kindergarten classes which will begin in September.

It is necessary to provide proof of birth and evidence of immunization against polio.

Registrations will be conducted at the El Toro Marine School on Trabuco Road, at the Gates School on Landisview Avenue in Laguna North, at the Olivewood School on Dunemear, near the Republic tract, and at the University Park School on Mathews Avenue in University Village.

Prospective students from Mission Viejo who will attend the O'Neil School may be registered at either the Gates School or Olivewood.

At the same time that kindergarten youngsters take their first step toward commencing their educational career a substantial number of pupils will be enrolling in the district's summer school program.

The program, which is without cost to parents, will be conducted at El Toro Marine School, Gates School, Olivewood School, and University Park School.

Pupils who live in the San Joaquin School District or who are moving to the district are eligible regardless of whether or not they presently attend classes in the area.

Enrollment forms are available at each school.

El Toro Homeowner For Water District

Local rancher V.P. Baker announced his week that he is looking for a local El Toro resident to serve on the board of the Los Alisos Water District. He would be especially interested in an applicant from the Aliso Valley Homeowners Assn. Baker may be contacted at 642-0740.

EDITORIAL:

Homeowners Must 'Stick Together'

Congratulations are in order for the Aliso Valley Homeowners Association and to developer Richard Cavanaugh and staff for their recent settlement of a zoning problem in the El Toro area. Compromise is the American, democratic way of settling problems. And when these conflicts are settled out of court there is a saving of money.

The Orange County Planning Commission voted unanimously in favor of the necessary change in zoning and complimented both Rose Glen and the homeowners association for solving the dispute.

This is a good example of the benefits of local homeowners being organized to defend their interests. In an area growing as rapidly as ours it appears imperative that the various areas stay organized.

And there are other benefits that are derived from such homeowners organizations. The Aliso Valley Homeowners Association has recently developed a sub-group called the "Planning Committee" which is concerned with a total beautification program for the area. The beautification program includes El Toro, Mission Viejo, Laguna Hills and Pasa Verde.

In charge of this Planning Committee is Chairman James Vakoutis and includes committee members Robert Arp, Richard Matthews, Evan Owens and Frank Kifer. They have been meeting each week in trying to control zoning in the area and are interested in tying the architecture of the above mentioned areas together.

This committee also meets in conjunction with the regular meeting of the Aliso Homeowners Association. Tomorrow, Thursday, May 18, at 7:30 p.m. at the El Toro Women's Club, is the next regular meeting of the homeowners group. See you there?

BLUE CHIPS...

WHEN SHOULD I BUY?

There are many ways to invest in the ownership of American Business. Recent articles have discussed common stocks. This, and subsequent columns, will mention some of the other types of securities.

Convertible securities, either bonds or preferred stocks, get their "convertible" identity from the fact that they may be exchanged for or "converted" into, shares of common stock.

A convertible bond attempts to combine the best of two features—safety of capital plus the opportunity for price appreciation. Being a debt owed by the issuing company, the par value of the bond is protected as long as the company is able to pay its debts. Because of the fixed interest rate, the convertible security offers considerable protection against a stock market decline.

Convertibles obtain their price appreciation potential from that of the common stock. If the stock price moves upward, the convertible will normally do the same and often at a more rapid rate.

Normally, a convertible sells at a premium. This is due to the fact that it is a "Call" on the common stock. The prospective investor should recognize this fact and expect to pay 12 to 15 percent premium for the convertible. That should be the maximum unless the company has an unusual growth record.

The amount of the premium can be easily computed by comparing the price of the convertible, the price of the stock and the conversion feature. Assume a bond that is convertible into 25 shares of the common stock. At par, $1,000, with the stock at $40 per share, there would be no premium. However, the bond might well be selling at $1,050 or a 5 per cent premium.

Incidentally, bond prices are usually quoted in hundreds rather than thousands. A bond quoted in the financial pages at 119 was actually selling at $1190, not $119.

Convertible bonds offer four major advantages: (1) an opportunity for capital appreciation; (2) the bond is a debt providing the bond owner with a fixed rate of return and a fixed principal payable at maturity; (3) the downside risk is limited by the yield factor; (4) the usual margin requirements do not apply. Bonds can be purchased on as little as 20 per cent margin.

Almost every week, new issues of convertibles are offered to the public. This writer, or any New York Stock Exchange broker, can advise you of the availability of these issues.

32 Hopetuls Seek Saddleback JC Superintendancy

Highlight of last week's regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Saddleback Junior College was a report of the Screening Committee on the selection of the Superintendent for the newly created junior college district.

Robert Turner, of Laguna Beach, reported that the committee has presently received 32 applications for the position. Deadline for filing for the superintendency is May 22.

The seven man screening board contains both professional educators and lay citizens. The committee includes Dr. Robert Peterson, Patrick J. Backus, Michael T. Collins, Jack S. Roper, Turner, James Maynard and Gordon Bishop.

Next meeting of the junior college board will be May 22 in Room 218 of the Mission Viejo High School. The public is invited.

REFLECTIONS ...

THE AMERICAN HOUSEWIFE

The word "housewife" has a peculiar American aroma around it. While in other underdeveloped nations only wives exist, in America housewives abound. Psychologists are proving that the American housewife is trapped. The Reader's Digest and other successful magazines are trying to show that the American housewife has been emancipated. Meanwhile the public is confused as to where the American housewife is going to end up; is it either on the psychiatrist's couch or on a sofa reading McCall's?

The word housewife recalls to my mind a profession that is a 16-hour a day job, unpaid, unthanked and unappreciated. It is an occupation that is literally taken for granted by all doting husbands.

It is by far the most complex job in the world that requires no college degree. Universities have tried to give an academic color to this age-old profession by awarding a degree in Home Economics. But all studies prove that modern housewives, irrespective of their academic backgrounds, suffer from similar dissatisfactions.

The job of a housewife demands the interplay of all human faculties. A housewife has to be a mistress, companion, and a nurse to her husband. She must also be a mother, nurse, hair stylist, fashion advisor, psychologist, chauffeur, nutritionist and occupational therapist to her children. In addition to cooking breakfasts and dinners, and running split-second station wagon service for her kids, she must also follow up on the food market bargains, attend PTA coffee hour, see the girl scout leader, and listen to her favorite TV soap operas.

By the time it is 5 p.m. she is desperate for some adult conversation with her husband. She might greet him with a query, "Honey, what do you think of freezing alive people for posterity?" The husband is very tired but he is also very hungry. The poor guy has no choice but to converse.

The choice to be a housewife should be a very personal choice for finding out one's identity or the meaning of one's life. It should never be an answer to the social pressures as it is today. Once that much is clearly understood, the future of the American housewife should be very bright. So should be the future of the American woman and America.

'Seven Man Board' Concept Presented at District Meet

Procedure for establishing a "Seven Man Governing Board" for the Tustin high school district was presented to the high school board at its last week's regular meeting.

High School Board President Ed Aikens will, in the near future, appoint a board committee to look into the advisability of the seven man board concept.

Jack Roper, of the County School Office, was used for research purposes for the procedures necessary for the structure of such a board.

C. A. "Neil" Papp, of Tustin, and Chuck Waltman, of El Toro, recently formed a lay committee to endorse a seven man board for the high school district.

Computer to Control Learning Experience

Computers are an addition to the human brain which will be as important to its development as language or science have been, according to Dean Ralph W. Gerard of the University of California, Irvine.

The eminent physiologist and dean of the UCI graduate division, told the recent 10th annual symposium of the Frontiers of Science Foundation in Oklahoma City that man's large brain developed "from an accidental start when he began to use tools, and the use of the computer will work to bring about a still better brain and a new kind of superman."

"Learning to learn is probably the most important thing evolution has given us," Gerard said. "It made possible collective learning and led to the development of language and science," he explained.

Speaking on the topic "Building Better Brains," Gerard, noted as a world authority on the brain and nervous system, said:

"Environment produces real changes in the brain -- changes which can be observed in its structure, chemistry and the way it works. It even gets larger if it is used hard.

"With the computer we will be able to control the kind of learning experience young people have. It will be possible to do in a relatively short time what evolution did over an extended period," he said.

"Perhaps the most important thing that can come out of computer aided learning," Gerard said, "is that education itself may move forward from pretty much of a medieval art, in which there is almost no evidence of what is really being accomplished by this most expensive, most continuous, most massively followed occupation of mankind."

Mission Viejo Hi Talk

Mission held its ASB elections assembly Thursday to introduce candidates for ASB offices for the coming year.

Students running for president, vice-president and speaker of the congress were presented and gave speeches listing their qualifications and reasons for running.

Kevin Frith and Burk Gossom, both juniors this year, are competing for president. Steve Fleet, class of '69 and Greg Killian, class of '68, are running for VP. Craig Thomsen is running unopposed for speaker of the congress.

Also introduced were the Diablos vying for the offices of secretary, treasurer, pep commissioner, activities commissioner and sophomore, junior and senior representatives.

Saturday, Mission Viejo is sponsoring a field day to feature student agricultural project exhibits. Hours for viewing the projects are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., with a beef barbecue dinner at 5:30.

Football athletes are now beginning practice for their big encounter of spring, the scarlet and gold game June 2.

Old football players of last year's team will compete against new Diablos in an expected close bout.

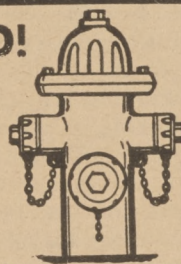

Old and new cheer and song leaders will be on hand to inspire the players and crowd with a competitive spirit.
